MARTEL LION TAMERS will play the K. of C. Quintet and Howitzer Co. will battle with the Juniors of 1926 in the semi-finals of the Marion County amateur basketball tournament...

The East Side Aces, considered by many as the probable winners of the Class A group, were eliminated by the Knights of Columbus in what might be called a basketball game but which looked more like a football skirmish.

Table with 2 columns: Player, Points. Rows include Kirkpatrick, Howitzer, Agosta Lunas, Juniors of '26, Huber.

The K. of C. quintet will have to play better ball next Wednesday night when they meet the Juniors of 1926 in the semi-finals.

Howitzer's win over the Agosta Lunas in a battle replete with offensive work but little or no defense, the Agosta quintet fought from start to finish but could not compete with the fast Howitzer crew.

The Juniors displayed a flashing offense and an impenetrable defense in the first half but looked more or less like a bunch of sixth or seventh graders trying to play basketball in the third period.

NEW BRIDGES EXPECTED TO INCREASE TOURING

Believe Trips to Canada Will Become More Popular with Structures

Watertown, N. Y., Mar. 26.—Building of two proposed bridges from Northern New York points to Canada is destined to make this section one of the most popular for tourists of any in the country.

Congress has already authorized the construction of a bridge across the St. Lawrence from Collins Landing near Alexandria Bay, to the Canadian shore near Brockville.

The other bridge, to be built jointly by the states of New York and Vermont, would cross Lake Champlain between Crown Point, New York State, and Chimney Point, Vt.

The State Senate recently passed the St. Lawrence bridge bill introduced by Senator Penley A. Pitcher of Watertown, authorizing the erection of the bridge by the Thousand Island Bridge Corp.

The Assembly has yet to act, and it is probable that the Pitcher bill will be substituted for its twin, introduced in the over house by Assemblyman Alfred E. Emerson of Limerick.

The Champlain bridge would aid materially to the picturesqueness of the drive through the Adirondacks and would give the motorists an opportunity to circle around through the Adirondacks and White Mountains by using the bridge.

Because of the inconvenience of ferrying the lake, thousands of tourists have driven further South and this has kept down the travel for that section.

Medical science is miraculous. It is arranging matters so that even the good will not die young.

No woman wants to be an "angel," and a man knows that an angel generally isn't a very good housekeeper.

BETTER HOMES BEING URGED BY BUILDERS

Local Contractors Anticipate Brick Building Program in Marion This Year

With spring well advanced and industrial conditions better than they were last spring Marion home builders and contractors anticipate a brick building program during this year.

Stress is being placed on the better type of homes as is indicated by the number of homes under construction in several sections of the city. Another indication that better homes are being constructed is the estimated costs attached to building grants issued by the city clerk.

Heretofore prices given by the proposed builder have averaged little more than $2,800 while those that have been issued so far this year are well above the $3,000 mark.

In conjunction with this article is presented a picture of one of the type of homes which local building and contract men believe will figure largely in the better class of homes. Accompanying this picture are the architect's floor plans, showing the arrangement of the eight rooms on both the second and first floors.

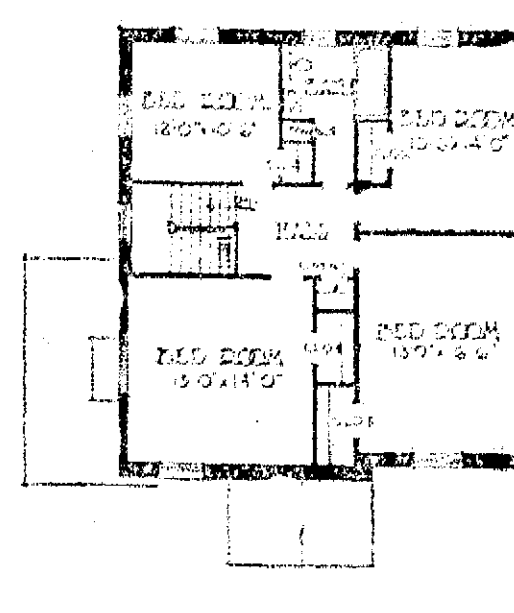

The floor area of the home pictured above is 2,300 square feet. The dimensions of the house are 40 by 30 feet.

The facing material of the exterior, as shown in the photograph is red brick. Nevertheless, the design is one that leaves a wide range in choice of materials. Light grey shingles with from eight to 10 inch exposure to the weather are being recommended to those who desire to build this type of house.

Since the building depends entirely on its outline and grouping of windows for architectural effect, any material having a pleasing surface may be adapted successfully, local builders say. All rooms are big and inviting and so arranged as to leave ample space for all furniture. On the second floor are large bedrooms, well ventilated, and large cupboard space in each.

The main floor contains the rooms generally found in a home of this kind, well arranged to accommodate furniture.

The bedrooms on the second floor are well arranged, convenient of access, provided with ample closet space and well ventilated.

STORMS HALT LUMBER TRADE IMPROVEMENT

Building Permit Figures Indicate This Year Will Be Profitable to Dealers

In its weekly review of the market, the American Lumberman, Chicago, says:

The storms that struck wide sections of the country last week have prevented continuance of the improvement in lumber trade that began during the preceding week. But building permit figures for February give evidence that this is going to be another big year for lumber. Permits issued in February of this year were five per cent. more than those for February of last year for the country as a whole, though this year's Florida total is a great deal less. The largest gains in building activity were in the large cities, the New York total being 37 per cent. ahead of that for last year, while the 25 leading cities recorded a gain of 25 per cent. This striking recovery from January makes it clear that good weather will mean a marked gain in trade.

Wood Production
Softwood production is still running a little under normal, and new business booked during the week ended Mar. 12 amounted to 13 per cent. more than the actual output. Trade has not been as quick in starting up as it was hoped it might be, and mills as a whole have rather full stocks. Prices have therefore remained near their low point, and quotations from list are still obtainable. But it will not take long for the present run of orders to reduce mill holdings to a point where price advances would be possible, and students of the market feel that an early turning up is probable.

Southern pine mills have been recording an increasing proportion of their business from the North and East. The

NEW MORTGAGE LOAN COMPANY FORMED HERE

Officers Say New Concern Will Aid Prospective Home Owners in Finances

A new mortgage loan company, the Marion Mortgage Loan Company, was organized and incorporated here today. The following officers were elected: John A. Schaefer, William J. George, J. A. Schaefer, M. C. O'Brien, George E. Price, Major O. M. H. Hanger, H. H. Hanger, Karl W. Schaefer, and Charles H. O'Brien. The directors in turn elected George E. Price, president; J. A. Schaefer, vice president; M. C. O'Brien, treasurer; and Karl W. Schaefer, secretary.

The executive committee will also elect an advisory committee of J. A. Schaefer, William J. George, J. A. Schaefer, M. C. O'Brien and Karl W. Schaefer.

Starts Operating

This new corporation which began its operation this last week has been in great demand in Marion for a great many years. It appears as if boys and farmers could mortgage on its property and to Marion residents in financing the building of new homes, its officers say. It should increase the ease of home ownership to buyers who do not have a sufficient amount of cash to finance a property down to first mortgage. This should promote for more homes and better citizenship in Marion, and will add still more to Marion's already illustrious record in home ownership. Marion stands near the top of the list among many cities in its large per cent. of home owners.

The office of the Marion Mortgage Co. will be located with Karl W. Schaefer in Room No. 17, over Woolworth's.

AARON SAPIRO BARES SUCCESS OF VENTURES

Recites History of Co-Operatives and Why So Many of Them Failed

Federal Building, Detroit, Mar. 28.—Aaron Sapiro, the "Co-operative King" of American agriculture, today bared the secret of his sensational rise in the farm world to the jury in the million-dollar Ford-Sapiro trial.

Sapiro told how he studied co-operative marketing, learned why some succeeded but many failed, and finally drafted a new system of organization. In the end 600,000 farmers grouped themselves in co-operatives based on his plan.

Sapiro took the stand to defend himself against the charges of Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent that he had exploited the farmers.

The story Sapiro told, sounded like a Horatio Alger tale, and Sapiro seemed like a character out of the same book. Of slight build, his youthful appearance belied his 43 years. He assumed his direct testimony by saying he "did some work" in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Illinois and Indiana in addition to the two dozen states named yesterday.

Touching on the history of co-operative marketing, Sapiro said a majority of the co-operatives organized before 1915 had failed. He told of studying both the failures and successes among the early associations, hunting the secret of successful co-operative marketing.

"What did you find?" asked William H. Gallagher, his chief counsel.

"I found the chief characteristics of co-operative which failed," said Sapiro, were that they were organized on the locally basis, in small communities. Those that succeeded were organized on a commodity basis. Among the first co-operatives, nearly all were organized locally and nearly all failed.

As Sapiro said it, the answer to co-operative marketing seemed a very simple thing. It took him three years of study, however, before he got the answer.

MAN OF MANY ALIASES MAY BE BROUGHT HERE

Charged with Cashing Worthless Check at Hotel Harding; Held in Cincinnati

A man with a list of aliases of imposing proportions, according to an affidavit filed against him in Municipal Court here, is under arrest in Cincinnati and may be brought to Marion for trial. It all depends upon what his position is made of his case in Cincinnati, local officials state.

The prisoner is registered as S. B. McCormick, alias S. B. McCracken, alias S. B. McCune, alias S. B. McCullough.

McCormick, etc., whose place of residence is unknown, was arrested in Cincinnati on the charge of cashing a worthless check and he is wanted for the same reason here. He is accused of having stopped off in Marion last August and cashed a $12 check at Hotel Harding. The check, drawn on the First National Bank of Pittsburgh, turned to be worthless, according to Charles Garvey, manager of Hotel Harding, who filed the affidavit in the local Municipal Court.

It is claimed that McCormick worked the check game in various cities throughout the country and had been finally apprehended in Cincinnati by officers employed by the National Hotel Black Protective Association.

Today Carter M. Patton, local Municipal Court prosecutor, wrote Cincinnati authorities notifying them of the affidavit on file here.

CITY DUMPING GROUND TO BE PUT UP FOR SALE

Tract of Two Acres on Patterson-st Will Be Disposed of

About two acres of ground on Patterson street, which the city owns and has used as a dumping place for refuse for almost two decades is to be offered for sale, according to present plans of City Council.

Just how the sale is to be negotiated remains to be determined. It is thought probable that it will be necessary to submit the question to voters of the city and if investigation shows this to be true, the matter will probably be voted upon at next fall's election.

There is doubt on this point, however, and last night council instructed City Solicitor Geran to look up the law and ascertain what method of procedure is required. He is to report at the next meeting.

The dumping ground site was part of an abandoned quarry when it was purchased by the city. As a result of the quarry operations, a large excavation covered practically the entire two acres. Since the time the purchase was made, the excavation was used as a repository for refuse collected in all parts of the city.

At last night's council meeting, Service Director Benedict reported that the excavation is now completely filled and that the place can no longer be used as a dump.

When the matter was first discussed several months ago, there was a proposal to have the city retain possession of the ground and convert it into a park or playground. This plan, however, has been abandoned, officials indicated today.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventures

BY JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

Friday, and me and Jubilee like always and walked the street, and fed our faces and and and Jubilee had and girls and dogs in and and and his and of the basement to look and every I would have a year there with I am certainly lucky.

Friday got away from the to him was good and plenty. He could of got a job in a sidewalk as a zebra boy if there had been a sidewalk any where he could get to it.

The teacher looked at my head and asked me how I felt, and I told her I felt fine. Then she said, "It is sometimes an advantage to have a head that is solid bone," and then the bunch believed and hugged me so much that I went in school before the bell rang.

Yonkers was in the room all alone with her face in her arms on her desk crying. I said, "What's the matter, Yoon?" and she looked up and her face was all wet with tears, and when she saw who it was she smiled, and then she said she was just thinking how often it would of been if I had been a girl, and I said it would of been a darn sight better, and she said I had killed Freddy and she asked me why, and I said because it would show that I was a poorer shot than he was, but girls are not very brave, and she didn't seem to see how I had put it all over him. And his father used to be a hunter and a trapper.

When I went home to milk the cows my aunt said, "Hello, William Tell," and the whole bunch had Yonkers thought it was funny. Then my aunt said it was a good thing I did not give an imitation of Arnold Winkelreid. I wanted to see her what he done, but that would please her too well, I bet whatever it was I could do it.

Annabelle Lee got my father's old razor blades and scattered them all over herself, but didn't cut her anything, and Freddy was sure where. My mother says we are making her hair gray.

I said, "What's the matter, Yoon?"

After a while and got in behind the house in the basement and he had a lot of showing me what his father done to him when the teacher was looking for me and all the kids were laughing her, and Freddy was sure where. My mother says we are making her hair gray.

What his father had done to her hair gray.

When Boppy, the funny little wooden man, who had no arms or legs, rolled from beneath the edge of Uncle Wiggly's front door, so it could be opened, I told you last night, the rabbit and the boy Wov, who entered by the back door of the bungalow to see what the trouble was, sat down and waited.

"You said you wanted to ask me a question," Uncle Wiggly reminded the old Boppy. "I shall be happy to answer it if I can."

"Oh, I think you can all right," spoke Boppy. "The question is—will you? He bounced up in the air several times and came closer to Mr. Longears. For bouncing up and down was Boppy's manner of walking without legs. Then, stretching his head up on the wooden peg, which formed his neck, to make himself look taller, the little wooden man said:

"The favor I want of you, Uncle Wiggly, is for you to come and live in the bungalow with Um and me for a while and help us to keep the Woggleys from getting scrambled. Will you?"

Uncle Wiggly twinkled his pink nose and thought for a moment. He remembered how, some weeks before this, he had awakened one morning to see a quaint little house built near his own hollow stump bungalow. In this house, which was called a bungalow, because it was partly a bungalow and partly a stump, lived Boppy, Um and the Woggleys.

The Woggleys were little wooden creatures with bodies made in the shape of two eggs joined together with a wooden peg. On one end the Woggleys had a tail and on the other end a head, and they had four wooden legs. Boppy was made of two round pieces of wood, with a head, but no legs or tail. Um was half as large as Boppy, being made of one piece of wood with a head.

Gadie Wogglejig was white, her sister, Mable, was light blue and her other sister, Dazie, was dark blue. There were three brothers, Dampie, Wumpie and Bumpie, who were respectively, colored red, yellow and green.

Now a funny thing about those Woggle children was that they were always trading their heads, legs, tails and bodies one with the other as they played about the bungalow.

"They are always getting scrambled," spoke Boppy. "And it takes all the time of Um and myself to unscramble them. We can never go and live in our bungalow for a time, Uncle Wiggly, to help unscramble the Woggleys. Will you?"

"I will," answered the bunny gentleman, who, before this, had had a few adventures with Boppy and Um as I have told you. "I'll hop right over."

"Then I'll roll with you," offered Boppy, who made his way by rolling and hopping.

"Are you going to stay with the Woggleys forever?" asked Jackie Bow Wov.

"Oh, no, just for a vacation," answered Uncle Wiggly.

The rabbit gentleman had no sooner reached the bungalow than out came bumping Dimple, the red Wogglejig boy.

"Where's your tail, Dimple?" quick asked Boppy. "You shouldn't be running around without your tail! It isn't polite, especially when Uncle Wiggly comes to visit us. Where's your tail?"

Dimple turned his wooden head around to look.

"Oh, my tail is gone," he cried. "My nice, red tail. Oh, please help me find it, Uncle Wiggly."

"I will," answered the rabbit gentleman. "But where did you last have your tail, Dimple?"

"I can't remember," answered the red Wogglejig boy.

"Well, here's an adventure for me the first thing," cried jolly Uncle Wiggly. "I must find Dimple's tail!" So he looked all around for it, and so did the little Wogglejig boy, and, all of a sudden they heard a thump, thump.

"The favor I want of you, Uncle Wiggly, is for you to come and live in the bungalow with Um and me for a while and help us to keep the Woggleys from getting scrambled. Will you?"

TWO NEW TAX MEASURES BEFORE HOUSE TODAY

Dodd Bill Provides Direct Tax Levy of Half Mill; Would Yield $6,500,000

Columbus, Mar. 29.—Two new taxation measures were pending in the Ohio House of Representatives here today.

One, a bill by Rep. Martin Dodd, Toledo, Republican floor leader, provides for a direct state tax levy of a half-mill, designed to yield about $6,500,000 additional state revenue. The other, a joint resolution, by Rep. Horner Kiefer, Springfield, proposes to amend the state constitution by adding counties and school districts to the list of political subdivisions entitled to a portion of the state income and inheritance taxes. Both measures were introduced Monday night.

Under suspension of the house rules, the Dodd bill was given second reading and was referred to a committee of the whole which will take it up for further consideration at Wednesday's session of the house.

The Kiefer resolution was laid over, under the rules, and is scheduled to be taken up by the house this afternoon for further action. The resolution proposes to submit to Ohio voters at the election next November an amendment to Section 9, Article 12, of the Ohio constitution, to read as follows:

"Not less than 50 per cent of the income and inheritance taxes that may be collected by the state shall be returned to the county, school district, city, village, or township in which said income or inheritance tax originates, as may be provided by law."

GOLDEN DEFEATS
FARRELL IN MEET

Atlanta, Ga., Mar. 29.—John Golden, veteran golfer of Ratterson, N. J., professional, was $2,250 richer today by defeating Johnny Farrell, the youthful Quaker Ridge Pro, in their play-off for the $4,000 first prize in the Southern golf open.

The difference between first and second place was the difference between $4,000 and $1,750.

With $2,250 at stake and all square going into the last hole, both suffered an attack of nerves and played like novices. The eighteenth, a one-hole shot of 185 yards, found both their tee shots trapped. Both wasted strokes in the trap. Golden finally holed a four to Farrell's five, and won, 70 to 71.

ENGINEER FOR GAS RATE CASE SEEKS PAYMENT

Council Decides Not To Make Settlement Until Controversy Is Ended

W. H. Weiss, Cincinnati consulting engineer employed as expert investigator for Marion and other Ohio cities in their rate controversy with the Logan Gas Co., will not receive final payment for his services from this city until the rate proceedings are definitely concluded, according to action taken by council here last night.

A letter was received at last night's meeting from Mr. Weiss, requesting payment of $387.15, the balance of the amount which the city of Marion contracted to pay as its share of the engineer's compensation. The total of Marion's apportionment, fixed in an ordinance adopted on Jan. 11, 1926, was $1,935.75, all of this amount, with the exception of the $387.15, having been paid Mr. Weiss in accordance with the contract terms.

Cost Shared. All cities participating in the fight against the gas rate increase, which was tentatively ended in a compromise reached at Columbus last week, share the cost of hiring the engineer on a pro rata basis, figured at 25 cents for each gas meter in use. The total to be paid Weiss by all of the cities was $15,000.

Although in his letter Mr. Weiss stated that only four of the cities, including Marion, have not settled with him in full, the local council decided to hold off the final payment until satisfied that the engineer has finished his work.

"There is no guarantee that the settlement will be ratified and until the transaction is completed I believe that we should delay in this payment," Emory E. Murphy, president of Council stated. The other members concurred in this view.

Ordinance Provisions. It was council's understanding, as expressed last night, that Mr. Weiss
